Smith: I supported Trump and continue to do so. While not a perfect person, he championed matters important to faithful Christians, including criminal-justice reform, support for the military, religious liberty — and Israel. He kept his promises to support prolife issues and appoint conservative judges.

Jones: I did not support Trump or no longer support him. Evangelical leaders' obsessive support of Trump coupled with his personal failings does more harm than good tarnishing numerous causes, including Evangelicals' credibility to Christian witness, compassionately championing the unborn and the sanctity of life, and even celebrating the values and traditions of our Western civilization.
